DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The "mass impulses" of claim 1 is indefinite language. In the disclosure at paragraph 11 it is noted that "the products from the masses and the speeds of the two actuator elements add up vectorially to a total of zero." What products? It is thought that the mass impulses are caused by activating the actuators simultaneously, wherein one is expanded and one is compressed so that, as claim 3 notes, their "vectorial sum of longitudinal movements ... is approximately zero". This however does not explain what "the products" refer to.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art shows the state of the art. While there are no art rejections based on the invention as it is understood, it is not clear at this time whether or not the claims may eventually be considered allowable.
